Description

Portrait painting of a gypsy woman by the Belgian painter Martin de Waelhem. This artist regularly depicted scenes from everyday life, portraits or landscapes and seascapes. His compositions are balanced and his characters are rendered with realism while capturing their personality. Martin de Waelhem's portraits are often marked by great sensitivity. He has always approached these subjects with great technical mastery. Martin de Waelhem is an artist whose work deserves to be discovered, his paintings offer a unique look at the world around him. One of these paintings decorates the Elysée Palace, another is in the collection of King Gustav V of Sweden. Signed lower right and dated 1957. Good condition, original frame, possibly a little cleaning of the canvas depending on expectations.
