Description

Magnificent oil on canvas of 100x100 cm made by Pascal MOLLET, contemporary painter, listed and present in many internationally renowned alleys. Mixed technique with glossy lacquer. A sublime work, full of strength! A very large format that will find its place in a beautiful modern and refined space. Pascal Mollet's painting opens up to multiple spaces where the near and the far, the large and the small coexist, where interior and exterior visions, old and current, meet and come alive. Alternating stellar evocations with cartographic visions, coastal notations of bright continents and radiant territories with allusions to the living, to the depths and aquatic transparencies where algae are scattered in necklaces of gleaming pearls, the canvases sparkle with their organic and original background. Pascal Mollet's pictorial work explores the medium. The starting point is the stain, the pictorial material that spreads freely. It establishes a permanent dialogue between the stain, the oil paint that diffuses on the support following the fluidity imparted to the medium by the work of the diluents and the intentional, controlled touch, which directs, organizes and structures. Reminiscent of Aboriginal dreamlike expression, the punctiform touch frees itself from dimensional constraints to follow the outlines of personal reveries and construct the pictorial composition
