Description

There are five of them lined up as you like... The first five jars contain boas and the sixth presents a python. These juvenile animals come from a zoological garden that has kept them for educational purposes. Traceability is assured. Obvious curiosities form an untraceable set. Transport will be done by carrier or hand delivery. The liquid is alcohol, so they can be handled without danger by curious young children... Unlike the old jars of formaldehyde which could prove harmful in the event of an accident.
