Description

Vintage unisex signet ring crafted in 18K white gold, dating from the 1970s-1980s and set with a blue tourmaline cabochon.The tourmaline displays a deep, luminous blue color whose intensity changes with the light. Its smooth cabochon shape contrasts elegantly with the clean, structured lines of the setting.The ring's refined lines and sculptural volume reflect the formal experimentation of 1970s design, a period marked by a taste for innovative, almost futuristic silhouettes and a search for balance between geometry and softness.The brushed white gold enhances this graphic character, while the rounded cabochon softens the overall design. This subtle contrast between strength and softness gives the ring a confident presence without appearing ostentatious.With its generous weight
