Description

An elegant pastel portrait on paper depicting a young lady holding a letter, adding a narrative and intimate touch to the scene. The work is attributable to the French School of the 18th century, with clear references to the refined style of François-Hubert Drouais (Paris, 14 December 1727 - Paris, 21 October 1775), renowned for his ability to portray delicate and elegant female figures.

The artwork is mounted on canvas stretched over a wooden frame and is enhanced by a simple gilded frame that highlights its refinement. Its dimensions, including the frame, are 76 cm in height x 66 cm in width, making it ideal for an interior that combines art and elegance.
