Bronze "laughing Child", Signed A.injalbert - Late 19th Century

1 100 EUR

Signature : INJALBERT

Period : 19th century

Condition : Très bon état

Material : Bronze

Width : 16

Height : 27

Depth : 13

Description

Jean-Antoine Injalbert, also known as Antonin Injalbert (1845-1933), was a French sculptor renowned for his figurative works. One of his most notable creations is the bronze sculpture Bust of a Young Girl, also known as Laughing Child. This work, dating from the late 19th century, captures the essence of childish innocence and mischief. The bust depicts a young girl, looking over her shoulder with a mischievous and impish look. The minute details of the face and expression are a testament to Injalbert's technical mastery and his ability to breathe life into his sculptures. The bronze, a noble and durable material, gives the work an imposing and timeless presence. The sculpture rests on a sea green marble pedestal, adding a touch of elegance and contrast to the whole. The

Dealer

Antiquités Lecomte
Antiquaire Généraliste
Tel : 02.40.57.63.83
Mobile : 06.38.26.81.12

33 La Bosse des Landes
HERIC 44810

sea green marble, with its unique veins and nuances, highlights the finesse of the bronze and creates a visual harmony between the two materials. The Bust of a Young Girl by Injalbert is a work that transcends time and eras, recalling the beauty and simplicity of childhood. It also testifies to the importance of figurative sculpture in 19th century art and the potential of artists to capture fleeting moments of everyday life. In short, this sculpture is a tribute to youth and innocence, and it continues to inspire and fascinate art lovers around the world.  Period: Late 19th century Excellent condition Shipping possible in France and internationally Width: 16 cm Depth: 13 cm Height: 27 cm Reference: 90V