Description

Elegant Louis XVI style display cabinet with a structure in various veneers of blond mahogany, rosewood and amaranth. Its top is an authentic Aleppo marble with slight overhangs, in ochre, red and grey tones. The two glass doors are bordered by pretty worked brass rods and formed of frames in blond mahogany veneer. This piece of furniture contains an interior furnished with three shelves placed on a rack and therefore adjustable as desired to a total height of 119 cm. All offer a depth of 28.5 cm and their visible edges cut in half-round and blackened. The front uprights with cut sides have bronze falls in their upper parts. They are dressed in their length with a rosewood veneer framed by an Amaranth wood veneer and highlighted with a lemon tree net. The sides made of the same species each form three
