

Little Fast And Scary.... Not Even Bad... Not Even Scared... Whatever.

165 EUR

Period : 19th century

Condition : Parfait état

Material : Brass

Description

Medical mechanical scarifier Oh, it's just twelve sharp metal lancets that will cut your skin at lightning speed to get a good bleed... not even bad... A spring is used to arm the device, place it on the desired location, press the trigger, remove the tool and place a suction cup to create suction... not even scared... Brand Collin et C°.

The top face is guilloché, the perimeter is roughened, so as not to slip when handling. It weighs 170 grams. And measures 4.5 cm in diameter and 5 cm high. Excerpt: 19th century hospital heritage: Late 19th century scarifier with blades for suction cups: The invention of the scarifier dates back to the 17th century. All you have to do is press a trigger for this scarifier to simultaneously activate its blades and incise the skin. It was mainly used in combination with

Dealer

Complément d'objets

sciences, ethnical, naturalia, artificialia, didactical items, curiosities

Tel :

Mobile : 00 32 477 450 595

Wemmel 1780

suction cups, under the name of scarified suction cups. The purpose of scarification of the skin was to promote the flow of blood with the suction caused by the cupping glass. It was used in particular to treat lung diseases.