Description

Large and magnificent military portrait from the mid-18th century featuring an aristocratic character in armor, decorated with the royal and military order of Saint Louis. The military portrait was widely used to represent the blood nobility linked to the profession of arms. Military clothing is sparkling and richly decorated and accompanied by helmets, swords or military medals. This painting shows armor richly decorated with gilding, white silk fabrics, a helmet and a military medal. Without a doubt, this aristocrat is an important character with a sure regard for his status and an elegant gesture. Painting from the mid-18th century in its period frame in oak wood carved with scallop shells, interlacing and gilded flowered spandrels with gold leaf
