Description

A charming classical Empire style Italian chandelier born for candle lighting, featuring nine arms ending with candles, no electric wiring, can be used as candle holders or decorative candelabra.

Later crystal festoons made by new square shaped crystals join together the circular brass rings. In the lower section, spear shaped new crystal pendants dress the bottom of this antique chandelier of Italian origin.

Good condition, the antique iron structure reveals old weldings and dates back to 19th century born for candle lighting.

The chandelier is already set up for electric lighting as you can see from the small holes for the electric wires on the plates.
