A discreet painter with respect to history, Barend Graat was a pupil of his uncle Hans Both. He lives and works in Amsterdam as a decorative painter for many prominent families, and specializes in genre scenes, Italianate landscapes, and the depiction of animals. Our reclining Diana is a magnificent composition that can be dated to the 1670s. This graceful woman has all the attributes of a huntress, and the company of her dogs, which a valet takes care of in the
