Description

All the brilliance of spring with this baluster-shaped vase with a ring-shaped sausage neck in thick transparent glass with a partially frosted base decorated with four vermillion tulips. The tulips, each in a different position and at a different stage of flowering, offer a rotating decoration, their petals of a bright orange-red color finely striated ending a simply placed stem of a deep green standing out against the background that is both transparent and translucent.

A technical achievement combining the work of acid etching on very thick glass with the creation of flowers by applied while hot plaquettes and fine cold engraving.
