Description

Elegant pair of finely openwork porcelain baskets, from the late 19th century, in the style of the Empire. Flared in shape, they rest on a square pedestal enhanced with delicate gilding. The decoration, sober and refined, consists of a frame with openwork patterns highlighted by golden threads, bringing a precious touch to the whole. The balance between the luminous white of the porcelain and the golden accents testifies to the know-how of the manufacturers of this period. These ceremonial baskets, ideal for a refined presentation, will fit perfectly into a classic decoration or bring a sophisticated note to a contemporary interior.
