Description

Discover the Timeless Elegance of Meissen Porcelain - Europe's Oldest Porcelain
Manufacturer

Founded in 1710 by Augustus the Strong, Meissen is the oldest porcelain manufacturer in Europe, and this exquisite dinner service from the 1880s is a testament to its rich heritage of history and sophistication.

Marked with the iconic crossed swords emblem, Meissen porcelain is world-renowned for its extraordinary craftsmanship and unmatched quality. Known as "Old Saxony," this style of porcelain maintains its prestigious reputation to this day.

Every step of production occurs at Meissen's historic site, where traditional artisan techniques transform raw materials into porcelain of unparalleled delicacy and luminosity.

The colors used in Meissen porcelain are developed in their own laboratory, blending historic recipes with new formulations to ensure the brilliance and originality of each piece. This dedication to tradition and craftsmanship brings out the richness of detail, fidelity to original motifs, and the vibrancy of colors--qualities unique to Meissen porcelain.
