Description

This magnificent oil on canvas by Léon ABRY (1857-1905) illustrates a vibrant military scene, characteristic of the Belgian artist's academic and realist style. The work depicts a cavalry bivouac where saddled horses and soldiers prepare for battle or rest under fluttering flags. The subtle play of light and the meticulously painted details demonstrate Abry's technical mastery, specializing in 19th-century military representations. Framed in a superb antique frame with leafy motifs, this large-format canvas exudes a captivating historical atmosphere, imbued with realism and authenticity. An ideal collector's item for lovers of military and 19th-century art.
