Description

This set of six mid-20th-century Charles X style bird's eye maple chairs is a remarkable example of the elegance and craftsmanship of the period. The curved back of each chair is embellished with scroll, foliage and palmette motifs in rosewood, adding a touch of sophistication and refinement. The openwork crossbar of the back features three decorative cross-shaped elements, reinforcing the classic and symmetrical aesthetic of the design. The square-shaped seat, covered in a soft blue fabric, has decorations on the front that match those on the back, creating a pleasant visual continuity. The whole rests on curved front legs and sabre-shaped rear legs, giving these chairs stability and timeless elegance. These chairs are not only functional pieces of furniture, but also works of art that demonstrate the taste
