Description

Spectacular painting from the middle of the 19th century, this large seascape, oil on wood in its monumental gilded and stuké wooden frame with a wide cornice. "Mixed vessel in the storm reducing its sails" signed Gérard around 1840/50. An imposing and finely crafted work depicts this three-masted merchant ship of the Maritime Mixte company, fighting against the swell, all the sailors on deck busy reducing the sails, engine pushed to full speed and in a sky cleared by the wind. The sea seems hostile and the ship is fighting against the elements; this beautiful and proud portrait of a boat is representative of the beautiful seascapes painted with application between 1840 and 1860; A mastered and realistic work of large dimensions of a painting applied on a perfect thick prepared mahogany panel,
