Description

Very nice small folding camera 9 x 12 format Built by the Manhattan Optical Co in New York around 1895. Mahogany construction covered in leather on the outside and varnished on the inside.
Red leather bellows. Bausch & Lomb shutter with pneumatic release and regulation. Portable camera with a typical body of the period, commonly called a "Cycle" camera, reflecting its potential use by the increasing number of people using bicycles for transport. Leather covering on a wooden frame. With its three film tray frames and its original bag
