Robert-Fleury, Jules Adler, Ferdinand Humbert and François Flameng. After graduating from the Beaux-Arts, he worked in the studio of the master Rodolphe Julian alongside the future author Paul Briquet 2. He exhibited at the Salon des artistes français from 1906 and received an honorable mention in 1908, a 3rd class medal in 1912 and a gold medal in 1920, the year he was awarded hors-compétition. He won a second Grand Prix de Rome for painting in 1913. In 1938, he executed a composition featuring a naked young woman intended for the campaign for Rigaud's new perfume Féerie and that same year, he was also a member of the jury for the Miss France election, as in 1936. At that time, he lived at 10 avenue d'Iéna (1938 Tout Paris, Annuaire de la Société Parisienne, page 184)....
