Description

Meissen porcelain figurine from the series Les Cries de Paris, fish seller (Fischverkäuferin). Model created by Peter Reinicke around 1753-1754. Marked with blue crossed swords and numbered 11, 20th century, height: 13.5cm. Listed in the Meissen Bergmann catalogue.

History of the cries of Paris

Criage appears there as a public service placed under the dependence of royal authority. Men, women or children wandered the streets and shouted their goods or services to attract customers. Each trade had its own characteristic cry. Meissen was inspired by these professions and created a series of 34 figurines with his characters.
