areas.

In the background, among the hills, you can glimpse an ancient building, probably a church or a monastery.

The scene is animated by human and animal figures, including shepherds with their livestock, immersed in rural life.

Right painting:

It presents a landscape with a large natural rock arch, crossed by a small river or stream.

There are human and animal figures, who appear to be engaged in daily activities.

The softer lighting and the sky with blue-gold tones evoke a feeling of peace and harmony with nature.

Artistic features:

Style: Typical of late Baroque landscape painting, with a skilful use of chiaroscuro and atmospheric perspective.

Composition: Both paintings feature natural and constructed architecture, elements that guide the eye through the scene with depth and dynamism.

These works testify to the mastery of Angelo Antonio Cignaroli in the rendering of landscape and rural life, evoking an imposing and poetic nature, typical of 17th century Italian painting.
