Description

If I tell you 106 x88 x30 cm you can imagine the effect it had in the 19th century when the toddler felt lifted from the ground by his nanny and placed on the semblance of a saddle painted directly on the papier-mâché. Maybe at the time he had reins worthy of the name, Surely also at the time he had his two ears of soft leather and sported a beautiful horsehair tail. Today, well deprived of his attributes, he only has his soul and his horse body still attached to the original walking board. His name is: for ever... Delivery either hand-delivered or sent by carrier, the cost remains to be determined according to the distance from his new home.
