Description

Antique cane in solid silver and snakewood - Art Nouveau
Elegant cane from the Art Nouveau period, decorated with a superb solid silver pommel, hallmarked Minerva, representing a finely chiseled praying mantis. A symbol of good fortune and divine protection in many cultures, this emblematic insect gives this cane a unique artistic and symbolic dimension. The pommel bears the initials, name and address of the owner engraved: "AD" DUCROS, 8 Rue Hôtel des Postes, NICE. The goldsmith, although hallmarked, remains illegible. The shaft, made of snakewood, seduces with its quality and natural elegance, and ends with a horn ferrule. The whole is in very good general condition, with slight marks of use consistent with its age. Dimensions: Height: 88 cm Width of the knob:
