Description

Le Havre harbor at the beginning of the century by Albert BRENET Gouache on paper mounted on hardboard. H.77 x W.113 cm Original frame and condition In the distance, a liner from the Compagnie Générale Transatlantique arrives from New York. A liner from the provincial series, perhaps the "Povence". In the early years of the 20th century, a large four-masted Bordes ship arrives in the harbor at the end of the day, reducing its sails. Fishing boats from Le Havre leave for the night. Extract from the book Albert BRENET, Peintre Reporter, work reproduced on page 9.
