Hunters, pair of panels. Porcelain. Probably Germany, 19th century.

Pair of wall plaques with metal hanging pieces on the top and a polychrome figurative decoration on the front, in relief. One represents a rider dressed in furs, accompanied by a fox (probably), and the other a woman, also on horseback, hunting a feline (perhaps a tiger). Their style is reminiscent of the porcelain pieces made in Meissen in the 19th century. -

Dimensions: 31x31x6 cm
