Description

Officer's belt saber, ceremonial saber or officer's saber. Solingen, Germany, first quarter of the 19th century. Signed sheet. It has a garnish with decorative elements of a strong classical influence in relief and a pommel with a lion's head on a curve. Note the handles, with two bands with plant decoration. The front of the handle has scrolls, palms and plant elements framed by a figurative theme that is also classical (perhaps a river allegory). The straight blade has a first third decorated with a blued finish and gold engravings (on the moustache, we can clearly read "Solingen"), the second follows the recessed edge ending in a point, and the last part already shows the two edges that are common to these pieces. - Dimensions: 11x5x97 cm
