Description

This French Louis-Philippe nightstand, crafted in the 19th century, embodies the understated elegance and fine craftsmanship of its time. Its burl walnut front, a prized wood known for its swirling grain patterns and striking light effects, gives this piece a unique character. This refined detail highlights the meticulous care taken in its construction.

The solid ash sides provide a sturdy and durable structure while adding a warm, luminous tone. This wood, renowned for its strength and flexibility, was commonly used in high-quality cabinetry.

The nightstand features a drawer and a door, both fitted with wooden knobs, preserving its pure and timeless aesthetic. Its boudin called feet, characteristic of the Louis-Philippe style, combine stability and elegance. The original patina, carefully preserved, bears witness to the passage of time and respect for its authenticity. Its waxed finish enhances the wood's depth and gives it a soft, velvety touch.

A piece full of history, a witness to a refined way of life

Hailing from a wine estate in the Loire Valley, this nightstand was once part of a chamber reserved for estate staff, who oversaw the vineyard's precious harvests. It has discreetly endured through the ages, carrying with it the imprint of a simple yet refined daily life, in rhythm with the vineyard's cycle.

A timeless piece, perfect for any interior

Today, this nightstand blends seamlessly into both classic and contemporary interiors. It can serve as a sophisticated bedside table, a refined accent piece in a living room or office, or a practical storage unit in an entryway. Its compact size and authentic charm make it a decorative and functional addition, ideal for bringing a touch of history and character into any space.

This piece is in very good condition, with a few minor signs of use that add to its charm and authenticity.
