Description

Very rare Marine Chronometer (Mathew Norman). Entirely in aluminum. Alu dial, with indexes, white hands and central red second hand. Electric movement running Junghans on a battery. Aluminum case, with movement mounted on a cardan like all Marine chronometers. This is the first time in my career that I have seen this type of chronometer. Why in aluminum, rather than wood? Maybe to protect the movement from certain electromagnetic waves. Perfect working order. I remain at your disposal for any additional information or photos.
