Description

Convoy of silver cruets. Córdoba, Cristóbal Sánchez Soto (1755-1802), circa third third of the 18th century.

With punches and engraving marks.

The current convoy maintains a slight rococo reminiscence in its lines, but also advances something of the neoclassical decorative purity.

The craftsman, Cristóbal Sánchez Soto, is known for works of great importance such as a chariot for the Virgin of Solitude and a tabernacle, both for the Brotherhood of the Nazarene of Córdoba, for example. The other two punches that appear are that of the city (Córdoba) and that of the assayer, Juan de Luque y Leyva (1721 1779).
