Description

A frosted and pressed-moulded glass vase by René Lalique, Hortensia model, dating from the early 20th century. This vase perfectly illustrates Lalique's Art Nouveau style, with a relief decoration representing hydrangea flowers and finely sculpted foliage. The work of the frosted glass highlights the finesse of the motif and gives a visual softness characteristic of Lalique's creations. This type of piece testifies to the excellence and refinement of the master glassmaker in the art of moulded-pressed glass.
