Description

Glazed ceramic spice rack. Talavera de la Reina, 18th century.
Three-cup spice rack in the shape of an equilateral triangle, made of ceramic and decorated with high-temperature enamels typical of Talavera polychromy: manganese black for the edges and antimony oranges and yellows, copper green and cobalt blue. It is a piece of classical style, with clean lines that delimit the different parts of the structure, a well-organized decoration and synthetic motifs that refer to the Greco-Latin ornamental repertoire, such as the palmette and the acanthus leaf. -
