Description

This terracotta sculpture, created by the artist Igné, pays a vibrant tribute to the women who resisted during the Second World War. Through the raw material and expressive forms, the work embodies the strength, courage and trials experienced by these women engaged in the fight for freedom. The sculpted details bear witness to a history marked by suffering and resilience, inscribing their memory in the earth itself. This artistic work highlights not only their fight, but also their legacy, inspiring future generations to never forget these shadowy figures who shaped History.
