Description

Kepi model 1931 of doctor lieutenant colonel of the Colonial Troops. This kepi, without manufacturer, is of beautiful construction and particular to the Colonial Troops, with a crimson velvet headband, rather well preserved here, and a black turban/cap. The visor is made of leather, the visor band, very thick, also. The anchor is gold in color, as it should be. The two buttons holding the false chinstrap are in the Colonial Troops motif. Not so common kepi, for this rank and for this specialty, it holds a good place among the kepis of the Colonial Troops. It is described in article 41, chapter II, title II of the Description of the uniforms of the Colonial Troops (France, Algeria, Tunisia, External theaters of operations, colonies), volume stopped on April 1, 1935, published by Charles-Lavauzelle & Cie.- This
