Description

Inkwell. Glazed ceramic. Talavera de la Reina, Spain, 17th century.

Square-shaped inkwell or spice rack, made of glazed ceramic, with polychrome decoration of plant elements on the top and fronts. Due to the colors used, it belongs to the so-called tricolor series, which began to be produced in Talavera de la Reina at the beginning of the 16th century and became common even at the beginning of the 18th century. Compare with the decorations of the pieces preserved in the Museo Nacional de Artes Decorativas (Madrid, Spain) or in the Museo de Cerámica Ruiz de Luna in Talavera de la Reina (Toledo, Spain). -
