Description

Glazed ceramic vase from the Sarreguemines factory, early 20th century, in the Art Nouveau style. Its textured enamel is in shades of gray and blue. Two bronze rings emphasize its lines: one at the base of the neck, accentuating the opening, the other at the foot, providing visual balance and a neat finish. The Sarreguemines factory, active since the 19th century, has distinguished itself by the quality and diversity of its ceramic production. Renowned for its earthenware and enamels, it has adapted to fashionable styles, including Art Nouveau, by integrating elegant shapes and refined finishes. This vase is part of this tradition, reflecting the know-how and aesthetics of the time.
