Description

Late 18th century console table with scroll and palmette motif.

The openwork belt is decorated with palmettes alternating with rounded geometric motifs and the connecting dice with pearl flower motifs.

It is topped with a red veined marble top with a corbin beak, resting on the belt itself supported by scroll feet ending in large acanthus leaves.

The two feet are connected at the bottom by a spacer decorated with a large bouquet of flowers and foliage decorated with a stylized vase or basket.
