Description

This exquisite oil painting on plywood from the Italian school, dating back to the first half of the 20th century, presents a captivating landscape that embodies the charm of southern Italy. The painting has a signature on the lower right but the author has not been identified and the painting is not authenticated. The scene unfolds with a dramatic cliff meeting the sea, where two figures find respite in the shade of architectural ruins. Their serene posture suggests a moment of quiet reflection as they take in the expansive view and bask in the warmth of a sunny day. The composition captures a harmonious blend of nature and human presence, evoking a sense of tranquility and leisure. The painting showcases good pictorial quality, with careful attention to detail and color that bring the landscape to life. It
