Description

Carved, polychrome and gilded wooden finial, 18th century.

Painted finish with a marbled appearance, decorated with scrolls and carved and gilded plant motifs on its front face. It must have been part of a larger work, such as an altarpiece, and the quality of its execution and polychromy are remarkable. The volume of the sculpture and the movement given to it by its curves link this finish to the Baroque, while recalling the Rococo in certain details. -
