Description

Lovely old Louis XVI style fireplace dating from the middle of the 19th century made from a beautiful Griotte Rouge called partridge eyes. Called quarter round, a reference to the shape of its shelf and its rounded jambs, it is carved with a daisy in the center and rosettes at the ends, it has its original cast iron narrowing, a hearth plate can be made to measure depending on the availability of marble. This fireplace has been completely restored by our workshops in perfect condition, available now at our showroom.
