Description

A Pair of French Empire Candelabra with Caryatid Figures, ca. 19th Century This magnificent pair of Empire candelabra, from France, exemplifies the refined neoclassical style that flourished in the early 19th century. Standing an impressive 23 inches tall by 7.5 inches wide, these candelabra exude elegance and grandeur. Each piece is centered around a meticulously crafted caryatid, a female sculpture draped in classical attire, symbolizing strength and grace. The candelabra are crafted from patinated gilt bronze, creating a sophisticated contrast between the warm gilt accents and the deep, aged patina of the figures. The caryatids rest on an ornate square pedestal, richly decorated with Empire-style gilt motifs, including stylized foliage and classical embellishments. Above the figures, three
