Description

Large old Norman wedding cabinet of high quality and great historical value. Here is a detailed description: Materials and Construction The armoire is made of solid light oak, a material known for its durability and natural beauty. The oak used here has a light stain that highlights the natural grains of the wood, adding to the elegance of the piece. Style and Period The style of the armoire is characteristic of the Louis XV period, known for its refinement and delicate ornamentation. This period, which spans the late 18th to early 19th centuries, is famous for its elegant and ornate furniture. Carvings and Ornaments The armoire is richly carved with foliate motifs, which is typical of the Louis XV style. The carvings are finely detailed and cover a large part of the armoire's surface, adding an artistic dimension to the piece. Ironwork The door hardware is made of gilded bronze and is beautifully carved. It features an intricate keyhole, with a key that still works perfectly. These fittings are not only functional but also decorative, adding a touch of luxury to the cabinet. Hinges and Feet Each door is held in place by three solid, gilded brass hinges, which is a testament to the quality of the construction. The feet of the cabinet are carved in the shape of shells, an aesthetic detail that adds to the overall elegance of the piece. Additional Decorations The bottom rail of the cabinet is carved with a heart decoration, a motif that adds a romantic and personal touch to the cabinet. This type of decoration is often used to personalize furniture and give it a special meaning. Construction Technique The cabinet is fully pegged, a traditional construction technique that uses wooden pegs to join the different parts of the piece of furniture together. This method is known for its strength and durability, and is often used in high-quality furniture. Condition The cabinet is in very good condition, which is remarkable for a piece of this period. The carvings, ironwork and other decorative elements are well preserved, which is a testament to the attention paid to its maintenance over the years. Conclusion In summary, this armoire is a magnificent example of Louis XV furniture, characterized by its solid oak construction, detailed carvings, gilt bronze hardware and brass hinges. It is a testament to the craftsmanship and artistry of the period, and is not only a functional piece of furniture but also a work of art in its own right. Its preservation in excellent condition makes it a valuable collector's item and a testament to the history of design and craftsmanship.
