Description

Painting, oil on panel, illustrating the scene of "The Tears of Saint Peter". In the center, Saint Peter* is depicted kneeling, wearing the tunic and pallium, the characteristic attire of the apostle, his hands placed on his chest, his eyes filled with tears and turned towards heaven. In front of him, his attributes: the rooster and the keys. Painting signed and dated 1744 (signature difficult to read)
Flemish school of the 18th century Saint Peter: Saint Peter is one of the most saints of Christianity. He was the first head of the Christian Church and is widely considered to be the first pope. Although his existence dates back to the 1st century, his legacy continues to this day. Saint Peter's Basilica in the Vatican is entirely dedicated to his martyrdom.
