Period : 20th century

Condition : Bon état

Material : Sandstone

Diameter : 4

Description

A set of seven miniature glazed flamed stoneware vases dating from the early 20th century.

Their organic shapes evoke the plant world, reminiscent of squash and cucurbits, in a style oscillating between Art Nouveau and Art Deco. Various marks are visible under the vases, as shown in the photos.

They appear to come from the Denbac or Charles Grébert factories, located in France.

The largest vase is approximately 6 cm high, and the widest 4 cm.

The set is in beautiful original condition. An elegant collection, ideal for a display case, which has the advantage of taking up little space.
