Description

Remarkable large painting from the 19th century French representing a shepherd sitting cross-legged against a large rock under a large oak tree in a universe of a bright and rocky clearing; his stick in hand this handsome and young character with a thick beard is concentrated, bust leaning forward, on the edge of the small path which comes out of the wood. This decorative and powerful work highlights the relationship of the naked man facing the immensity of nature. The shades of green and the points of light of the touches of foliage are a difficult exercise because the eye is quickly saturated; in this case this beautiful painting on its sturdy key frame, the balance of the composition, based on the humble and small man in a decor of green tones, the mastery of the touch and the
