the Army of Sambre-et-Meuse at the Salon des Artistes Français, of which he became a member in 1909, presenting his Spanish Campaign there that year. In 1910, he exhibited the painting entitled Un Renseignement and in 1911, General Dorsenne at Essling. In 1912, the painting Captain Hugo at Eylau was presented to the public. He traveled to Egypt and Turkey, from where he brought back numerous Orientalist works. Like other military painters such as Édouard Detaille, who was his contemporary, Lucien Lapeyre also embarked on a work of uniformological illustrations with the theme of the French armies. During the Great War, he produced numerous works depicting French soldiers in the trenches. His military work was popularized in the form of postcards, some of which are preserved at the Defense Historical Service. The artist is listed in Bénézit, Côté Artprice, Artnet, Akoun, etc. This cardboard panel is in very good condition. The painting, never cleaned, not dirty, is in very good condition, neither repainted nor repaired in any way, nothing shows up under UV rays. Original stuccoed and gilded wooden frame in good condition (minor wear). Painting in very good condition. Fast Shipping Worldwide - My Packaging is Secure!
