Description

Demitre H. Chiparus was famous for his Art Deco figures, especially those of the Ballet Russe dancers and their flamboyant costumes. Chiparus had a favorite male dancer: Vaslav Nijinsky (pictured). The statue almost certainly depicts Nijinsky. The statue features beautiful, bright colors, cold-painted on bronze, and rests on a brownish-white alabaster base. The faces and hands are made of resin. The hands are loose, and the left index finger is missing a piece. There is no signature on the sculpture. Attributed to Chiparus. Made circa 1925, the statue stands 32.8 cm tall.
