Description

A delightful pair of chased, gilt and patinated bronze candelabras, made in Paris in the 19th century in the Louis XVI style. Each candelabra depicts a standing faun, a mythological figure full of charm and elegance, holding two finely decorated light arms. The candelabras rest on a white marble base, providing a subtle contrast with the richness of the bronzes and enhanced with chased details evoking the refined taste of the period. This refined design reflects the classical harmony and technical mastery specific to the Louis XVI style. France 19th century
