traveled the banks of the Vézère in all weathers and different seasons. It was in the town of Eyzies in Dordogne that he spent a large part of his time, and where he married his second wife in 1894. Several hundred works were created on the banks of this river, which are for the majority not located today.Our very warm little panel is the perfect illustration of the Eyzies landscape. The holm oak and the rock are golden by the spring sun. This tree must be located above the Vézère downstream from the town.Do not hesitate to ask us for the iconography of the other paintings representing this place.We are looking for any work or information relating to the artist to complete his biography as well as a catalog raisonné currently in progress.
