Description

Elegant walking cane mounted on a base, composed of a dark wood shaft and a finely crafted metal knob. The knob, shaped like an ornamental ring, presents an atypical silhouette that could evoke a stylized head or an animal symbol. This type of cane could have belonged to a notable or a dignitary, as its appearance combines functionality and prestige. Its manufacture demonstrates refined craftsmanship, typical of prestigious objects of the 19th or early 20th century. The object can also be interpreted as a ceremonial or representative cane, due to its singular design. A rare piece, on the border between utilitarian object and art object.
