Description

Very beautiful 18th century chair in stained oak pegged with a high openwork back, front column legs and spacer, this remarkably preserved piece is useful, very solid and very elegant. Its careful manufacture, the quality of the oak chosen, its proportion and the beautiful carving work make this piece a beautiful additional element for an entrance or other. A presence with strong decorative value through the quality of the sculpture and its patina. A beautiful piece in perfect healthy condition and with strong decorative power, the high back and the beautiful spacer not to mention the front legs turned in colonnade a remnant of the Renaissance by its design and its proud appearance
